

1 ABSTRACT

2 A golf club accessory for retrieving golf tees has a
3 fastener for attaching the accessory to the handle end of the 4 golf club shaft. The accessory has a base approximating the 5 configuration of the butt end of the golf club handle. The 6 fastener is on one side of the base and flexible, resilient
7 fingers extend outwardly in the axis of the shaft from the other
8 side. The accessory may be integrally molded, mounted, formed
9 or otherwise incorporated into the golf club grip. After 10 striking the ball, the club is reversed and the golf tee is 11 captured by the fingers without the necessity of the golfer
12 bending his back.
